Description of Worms, and the symptoms by which they are known.

Worms which infest the human body are chiefly of four kinds viz.—The Teres or large round worm; the Ascarides or small maw-worm; the Cucurbitina or short flat white worm; and lastly, the Tænia or tape-worm, so called from its resemblance to tape. This is often many yards long and is full of joints. It is most hurtful and most difficult to remove.

Among the symptoms attending worms are—disagreeable breath, especially in the morning; bad and corrupted gums; itching in the nose, and about the seat; convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes privation of speech; starting and grinding of the teeth in sleep; irregular appetite, sometimes loathing food and sometimes voracious; purging with slimy and fœtid stools; vomiting; large and hard belly; pains and sickness at the stomach; slow fever with small and irregular pulse; a dry cough; excessive thirst; sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance, and sometimes the face bloated and flushed.

Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms should have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges, which have been constantly attended with success in all complaints similar to those above described.

FROM THE LONDON OBSERVER.

DRURY LANE.

Othello :—Mr. Kean and Mr. Booth.

It falls to our lot to speak of Mr. Booth as matched with the actor he has chosen to imitate, for to a certain extent we are persuaded that he has imitated Mr. Kean. There is something daring in this wrestle of talent, particularly as one of the parties has been tried and found to be a powerful creature. From what we saw on Thursday evening, we are convinced that Mr. Booth is a clever young man —as young men go ; that he will be an acquisition to the new school of playing, and may do much towards shewing that there ought to be but little difference between the parties before the lamps and behind them ; and that Mr. Kean is one of those fine and fiery spirits, that stands as it were upon the heart of nature, and controls its pulsation. Mr. Kean's Othello, on this occasion, was one of the most surprising achievements, that genius ever perfected. We will venture to assert that there was never a grander and more pathetic piece of acting on the English stage ; of course on no other stage. He seemed to feel he was put on the race, like a blood horse, and to take a pleasure in the struggle, and a justifiable pride in the success of his endeavors. Mr. Booth was matched to run against him ; at least we know that many persons had made the knack of Mr. Booth an argument against the genuine talent of Mr. Kean ; but Kean beat his antagonist hollow. He played Othello from his very soul, and he sent the fierceness and misery of the Moor into the hearts of all his hearers. Kean played himself into a state of absolute exhaustion, more than once. His face was a mirror to his heart ; and all its shades of terror & suspicion flitted over it like Banquo's shadows. Mr. Kean's style of acting is of the same quality with Lord Byron's style of poetry ; it is magnificently ferocious when in a state of violent excitement—fearfully pathetic in unexpected passages, and mysteriously attractive in general. In Bertram (Maturin's tragedy) he was the Corsair himself ; the same furious pirate, the same terrific lover, the same outcast at heart from all his kindred and kind, with the like broken fortune and bewildered hopes, and with a similarity in projects, daring deeds, and withered feelings. Kean's Bertram, though a direct nonentity in the way of morals or pure high-mindedness, was a fine bold picture of an ardent and warlike nature, wrecked on the storm of its own feelings, and wandering about on the shore of the world, desolate, and proud and savage —hating the earth and trusting not the heavens ; pursuing man with the fierceness of a tiger, and hoarding up in his bosom the remains of his shattered passion, like a miser. Bertram, like all the heroes of Lord Byron's tales, would be despised and hooted from our presence, if he had not a mystery in his air that betokened a mental superiority over his kind and a certain fulness of personal courage. Mr. Kean has always played Othello with a beautiful earnestness—but on the other evening, he seemed to feel his fame snatched at by a stranger hand, and the consequence was, that he put forth all his energies and arose on the wings of genius like an eagle above his opponent. Who shall not say that Mr. Kean is not a man of the fullest genius ? He makes the "breath of glory real." There was no art : (or if there was, we could not discern it) no feebleness, except from excess of exertion, and then such an exhaustion is the perfection of agitated feeling ; no unmeaning turbulence in his representation of Othello : he trusted himself to the power of his enthusiasm, and it did not betray him—Othello is of all others the character for Kean. It is pregnant with bursts of the deepest pathos and the wildest passion. It is full of gusto. What, in English Poetry, for a certain grandeur of characterestic feeling, can go beyond that sudden thought of desolation in Othello, when he finds that Desdemona's faithfulness has stricken down all love of glory and the world. Othello is a noble personification of an eastern battle. A sun-like being habited in golden robes, with a turban and sabre ; the love of war being the very passion in him ; a part of his nature. Mr. Kean proved his genius by his manner of delivering that most touching passage, " Oh ! now farewell forever !" &c. What a spirit of soul-felt partiality there is in the recollections of "The ear piercing fife," "The plumed troop," the neighing steed, the cannon, the drum ! What a pride, pomp, and circumstance of war ! And all hurled down ! Kean wrought the house into a breathless silence by his utter loneliness of heart on the delivery of this passage. And a dead quiet of this kind, is deeper applause than the shouts of forty nations joined together. His voice seemed to be going away forever. You felt alone after he had spoken.—It was too pathetic for words, thoughts or tears :—It was.

We have seen Mr. Kean in Othello four times before this representation —but like Caius Marcius, " he out did himself doubly," in the last struggle. Kean fought the Corioli battle of his fame on Thursday. He hath disciplined all other actors soundly.—We are glad we are not on the stage at this day, for we hate to be deficient in complete success, in any great pursuit ; and there is no getting above Kean. He will be King, and there is no saying nay to him. Shakespeare has said, that " if two men ride upon one horse, one must ride behind," and Mr. Booth must have found the truth of this by the present time. But to return to Mr. Booth ; in his performance of Iago, on Thursday, he was throughout, easy, correct, animated and expressive.—In his soliloquies, those trying tests, he was particularly successful ; but we were so far removed from the stage, that many points of his acting were lost to us.—His delivery of the celebrated speech, beginning, " Who steals my purse, steals trash,"—was a finished specimen of grateful recitation argumentatively delivered : yet was it so simply done, that any school boy in the house would fancy he could have hit it off as successfully. It is well known how sure a touchstone this is of merit. In the first soliloquy, wherein he developes his malignity towards the Moor, and germinates the first seed of mischief, he was very effective, and which is still his reigning merit in this character, perfectly simple. In the great scene too, where he first works upon Othello, he gave an admirable picture of easy villany, and never betrayed himself into one false antithesis of style. Yet there was no one point in the performance of Iago, that could give so just a view of his powers as the scene with lady Anne, and the Tent scene, in Richard the Third.

Those who have never witnessed Mr. Booths' performance of these scenes, have not had an opportunity to decide rightly upon his merits.—We are unversed in the politics of the Green Room, but we have some notion that this must be considered Mr. Kean's exclusive part at Drury-Lane : we hazard this as a guess, and if we are correct, so much the worse for Mr. Booth ; if not, so much the better. We feel anxious, at all events, to see Mr. Booth in some leading part which Mr. Kean has not played ; and of course this opportunity will be given; meanwhile we shall observe upon two defects in his deportment. In the first place, he has a sort of stoop, which it is essential he should correct, that he may have all the advantage of his height ; and in the next, he has not got the stage knack of poising himself, as it were, after the delivery of an effective speech, which fell upon the audience. We cannot direct how this is to be done ; but we suppose it to depend much on practice. It is unfortunate that at the end of the play, Iago has to do something which all actors must in some measure do alike, and from the natural points of resemblance between him and Mr. Kean, which we have before mentioned, the strength of the assimilation was materially heightened ; Mr. Booth is, of course, taxed more directly as a copyist.

It requires, as we have before hinted, more than a superficial criticism to mark the difference betwen the two ; and with attention this difference is very observable ; but again we say, we wish to see Mr. Booth in a part which Mr. Kean has not played, that the public might see this more exclusively than we fear they will be disposed to do, while they run in the same parts. We speak of the existence of a difference in conception more than in execution. In short, we would rescue Mr. Booth from the charge of plagiarism, if Indeed it be necessary after the avouchments of his having performed in his present manner, and particularly of his having acted the character of Richard as he did at Covent Garden, long before Mr. Kean's appearance.

ALEXANDRIA:
THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1817.

CHANGES IN THE ANIMAL KINGDOM.

Quadrupeds undergo, before and after their birth, complete changes—changes, not only in their structure and external appearances, but in their mental capabilities ; varying in their dispositions and manners as well as in the objects of their attention, according to the different stages of their existence. Many come blind into the world, and continue so for some time before they receive the sense of seeing. How many changes are exhibited in the dog, even from the time of his birth, till he becomes a perfect animal—till all his members are completely formed, and all his instincts are unfolded and improved by experience and education ! The deer kind do not acquire their magnificent and beautiful horns, till they have reached the age of puberty ; and even these are annually cast off and their place supplied by others.

Many birds are, for some time after they are hatched, blind, like quadrupeds. In this condition, how different are their form and appearances from those of the perfect animals ! At first, they are covered with a kind of down, instead of feathers. Even after the feathers shoot, they are often of a color different from that they acquire when full grown. The beautifully variegated colors of the peacock's tail, do not appear till he has arrived at his third year. Birds that have crests live a considerable time before they acquire those ornaments. All birds annually moult, or cast their feathers in the same manner as quadrupeds shed their hair.

Frogs, and many other amphibious animals, undergo entire changes in their form and structure. When it first escapes from the egg, the frog appears in the shape of a tadpole, an animal with a large roundish head, and a compressed or flat tail, but destitute of feet or legs. In this state it remains a considerable time, when the two first feet begin to shoot, and have an exact resemblance to the buds of trees. As their growth advances, the toes and legs are distinguishable. The same process goes on with the hind legs ; but they are somewhat later in making their appearance. During the growth of the legs, the blood being drawn into different channels, the tail suffers a gradual mortification, till at last it vanishes, and the tadpole is metamorphosed into a quadruped. Tadpoles never come out of the water ; but after their transformation into frogs, they become amphibious, and occasionally frequent both land and water.

The crustaceous tribes, as lobsters, crabs, &c. change their appearance, and cast their shells every year. After the shells are cast, they are perfectly defenceless, being covered over only with a thick membrane or skin. In this state, they become a prey to every fish. The skin, however, gradually grows harder, and by the time it resumes its former strength, the animal comes forth from the crevices of rocks, where it had retired for protection, and goes in quest of food. Serpents, too, and many other reptiles, cast their skins.

And now as to plants. What an amazing difference between an acorn and a full grown oak ! The seeds of plants may be compared to the chrysalis of butterflies. Like the chrysalis, the seed contains, in miniature, all the parts of the future plant. These parts require only time, and other circumstances necessary to vegetation, for their complete evolution.—Beside the general changes arising from growth, plants undergo a number of metamorphoses from other causes. With the exception of a few evergreens, trees, during winter, are entirely stript of their leaves. Instead of the pleasant emotions excited by the variety of figures, movements, colors & fragrance of their leaves, flowers and fruit during the spring and summer, nothing is exhibited in winter, but the bare stems and branches. In this state, the trees of the forest have a most lugubrious appearance. Very different are the emotions we feel in the spring, when the buds begin to burst, and the leaves to expand. When summer approaches, another beautiful change takes place. The flowers, with all their splendor of colors, and sweetness of odour, are then highly delightful to our senses. After performing the office of cherishing and protecting the tender fruit for some time, the flowers drop off, and a new change is exhibited. When the flowers fall, the young fruit appear, and gradually grow to maturity, perpetually presenting varieties in their magnitude, colour, odour and flavour. When the fruit or seeds are fully ripe, they are gathered for the use of man, drop down upon the earth, or are devoured by birds or other animals. After this change happens, to which all the others were only preparatory, the leaves begin to shed, winter commences, and the same series of metamorphoses goes on during the existence of the plant.

These changes are annual, and are intended ultimately to supply men and other animals with food. But plants are subject to changes of form, from causes of a more accidental nature—from soil from situation, from culture, and from climate. Z.

Baltimore, September 1.

Captain De La Roche informs, that when he sailed there was a rumor of an expected war between Russia and Sweden. It was said that the Russian fleet had sailed for France to take on board the Russian troops, and would land them on some part of the Swedish dominions on their return. The fleet consisted of 10 sail of men of war, five ships of the line ; they passed Elsineur June 11. A Tunisian corsair was reported to have been seen off the coast of Jutland about 20th June. On the night of the 25th of June, the prisoners in the work-house at Copenhagen set it on fire, in order to escape ; but the king being present, ordered the troops to fire at all those who should attempt to escape. About 28 or 30 men were shot or perished in the flames—several persons, in attempting to stop the progress of the fire, were mistaken for prisoners, and were fired upon by the soldiers—one or two killed, and several wounded. The next day the king had six of the prisoners who were saved from the flames shot.

Official letter from the governor of Cuba to his excellency the president, governor and captain general.

MOST EXCELLENT SIR,—Since the close of the mail I have received by an American vessel, that has just entered this port, the subjoined communication from the Spanish consulate in Norfolk—a copy of which I send your excellency, that you may, if you think proper, cause to be published in the daily paper of this city, the recovery of which it declares to have been made of the effects robbed from our vessels by pirates.

Norfolk, May 23, 1817.

SPANISH CONSULATE.

SIR,—The 6th of this month I had the honor of writing to you by the American schooner Julia, captain Keele, in which I announced to you that the privateers Independencia del Sur, captain Taylor ; a sloop of war lately built, named Idas, captain Mitchell ; and the privateer schr. El-Atrevido, alias the Romp ; had gone to sea, and to cruise against our commerce. The latter exists no longer, for at the moment of its departure from Hampton Roads the powder magazine took fire, and it blew into the air, with twenty-three of its crew ; the remainder, consisting only of the captain and thirty-three men, had the good fortune to escape with their lives from this disaster, with which God has been pleased to chastise these pirates. I now inform you that I have received, by the way of Philadelphia, the note which you were pleased to direct to me, dated the 22d of March last, and after having acquainted myself with its contents, I remitted it to his excellency Don Louis de Onis, minister of H. M. in Washington, in order that he may make upon it his due representation to this government. I am certain that the brig named Quatro de Julio, sailed from Baltimore between the 15th and 20th of December last, and notwithstanding that the secretary of state had given orders for the arrest of the pirate Thomas Taylor, the marshal did not choose to do it, as it has happened with others who were prosecuting him for piracy. I shall inform your lordship of said note, although I am persuaded our minister will acquaint you with it.

I also advise your lordship that the privateer Congress, captain Joseph Almeyda, has lately set sail from Baltimore, after having been repaired, recruited her crew, and taken in provisions and ammunition, notwithstanding the endeavors I made before my leaving that harbor for the seizure of that pirate, which I had at first obtained, but the tribunal set it again at liberty, for want of sufficient evidence of its piracies, although I had produced very satisfactory.

Be pleased to communicate to the merchants of your island that I have seized here, and have deposited safe in the stores of this custom house, eighty-seven zeroons of cochineal and three of jalap, which were landed here by captain James Taylor, from the privateer brig Independencia del Sur, and the Atrevido, which having met with two Spanish vessels named the San Andres, Santander, or San Ander, and the other la Santissima Trinidad, both which vessels, it is said, had sailed from Campeachy for the Havana, were robbed, one of 53 and the other of 34 zeroons of cochineal, and, it is said, were then permitted to proceed on their voyage. I have thought it important to communicate it to your lordship to the end that you would be pleased to cause it to be published for the information of the concerned, so that they may forward to me the necessary documents to prove the property, to the end that I may receive it in their name.

I am also bound to inform you that the vessels that sailed for your island from this port, do not take with them a manifest of this custom house, certified by the consul, which, if you judge proper, may require, in order to prevent the frauds which these captains frequently commit in these ports, to avoid paying the duties of entry to the royal custom house.

I offer myself anew to the disposal of your lordship, whom I pray God to preserve a great many years. Your most respectful and faithful servant, who kisses your hands, PABLO CHACON.

AFFIDAVIT OF STEPHEN DREDDEN.

Be it remembered, that on this 18th day of July, 1817, voluntarily appeared before Watson Pepper, one of the justices of the peace, in and for Sussex county, in the state of Delaware, Stephen Dredden, a free negro of Broad Creek Hundred, in said county, & being sworn, doth depose and declare, That on the 20th day of June last past, two of his children were stolen, kidnapped & taken from his house and carried into the state of Maryland, and that he doth believe from the information given to him, that that they are concealed and held by one George Dashield, a negro trader, residing on Yocomico river, at the lower ferry, unless he has sent them to the southern market. That he has been informed, and doth believe, that William Reggin, son of Isaac, and William Banning, and some others not necessary to name, were concerned in the offence. That the circumstances are nearly as follow: Wm. Reggin and Wm. Banning, each obtained warrants from a justice of the peace against deponent on pretended claims, and on the aforesaid 20th of June last, was the day for trial. That previous to said day Reggin and Banning did all in their power to impress upon deponent the absolute necessity of deponent's going to Laurel. That they would obtain judgment unless deponent went. That on Thursday before the day of trial, Sarah Moore, who lives about 200 yards from deponent's house, came in and persuaded deponent to go to Laurel, and advised deponent's wife also to go, and said that unless she went the traders would attempt to steal deponent. The next morning (Friday) she came in very early, and again pressed upon deponent's wife to go and said she would take the children to her house and keep them. After 9 o'clock deponent and wife started for Laurel, and left his five children in the care of Sarah Moore. And this deponent's daughter, about nine years old, has informed deponent, which he doth believe, that in about one hour after deponent and wife left his house, she, the said Sarah, went into the woods, and when she returned she ordered deponent's daughter to put down the child, 14 months old, and leave it in the care of the next oldest, about 5 years old, until she, the said Sarah, deponent's daughter and two sons should go into the woods after fuel for the fire. The deponent's daughter refused, & then she took deponent's two sons into the woods and returned without them, and remained until deponent returned from Laurel, without giving herself any concern about the children, only stating to the deponent's daughter, that she had left them hunting after birds' nests. But deponent believes his children were delivered over to Reggin, Banning, and two others by the said Sarah Moore ; because they were seen to pass the mill dam of Mr. Quillen about that time of the day, going toward's opponent's house, and they are all known to be negro traders. Deponent's children were taken to a woods where they were concealed until night, when they were seen about ten o'clock to pass towards Maryland in possession of the parties.—William Reggin and William Banning arrived at Laurel after the negroes were secured in the woods ; and before they could be ready for trial, were seen privately talking with George Moore, a negro trader, at which time deponent believes the bargain was made for the sale of his children. That after the trials were ended, which was about half an hour before sun-set, (and which were intentionally delayed by Regging and Banning) deponent and his wife started for home, where they arrived about dark, expecting to find their children safe, and without any fears about them. But, with what sorrow and anguish of soul, we found our children gone, we leave to other parents to describe. All the consolation offered by Sarah Moore, was "don't grieve about your children, it is not worth while for you will never see them any more. The lamentations which were made brought our neighbors from two miles to our house, and they were unable to resist the feelings which so much excited us—They involuntarily burst forth into lamentation and shed tears of grief. They were parents, and had children, and they saw that we, tho' black, were parents too, and felt as such. Being such, the wife appeal to all men selves to aid in the dis children. Brine Bath recommended to be kept in families, by Dr. Sims.

Take as many gallons of water as will fill the third of the bathing tub you intend to use. To this add about as much common sea salt as there is water; if the water be boiling at the time of using it, the whole will be immediately dissolved; if not, some of the salt will remain granulated at the bottom at first, but will be gradually dissolved afterwards. This bath will keep good any number of years, and is not expensive in the end. Nervous, weak persons, for whom bracing is requisite, often cannot bear a bath of common water—nay, even of sea water; but they will always bear this without injury. It may be employed in the midst of frost and snow without danger of catching cold. Persons come out of it with a glow on their skin, and very agreeable sensations. A sponge or towel may also be wetted with the brine, and used all over the body, where the bathing tub cannot. [London Paper.

Land for Sale.

I WOULD sell the farm on which I have lately resided, in the upper part of Prince William, bordering on the line which separates that from Fauquier county, Va. about thirty-five miles from Alexandria and Washington, containing upwards of one thousand acres; of which about one third is arable, and the residue heavily timbered. Experiments which have been made by several gentlemen whose lands surround this farm, prove the facility with which it may be improved by the use of clover and the plaster of Paris; which, added to its peculiar adaptation to the growth of timothy and other grass, would render it desirable both for agriculture and grazing. The improvements are a convenient two story dwelling house, with three rooms on the lower, and two on the upper floor, with necessary out-houses, and a spring of excellent water, which never fails in any season. As it is situated in one of the best settled and most agreeable neighborhoods in our country, it is an object well worthy the attention of any person disposed to vest his funds in property of that description.

The payments will be made accommodating; and any farther information may be obtained on application to the subscriber, living in the vicinity.

Proposals

For publishing, by subscription, an original work, to be entitled

A JOURNAL

OF THE LOSS OF THE BRIG COMMERCE, of Hartford, (Connecticut) Capt. Riley: of the captivity of Capt. Riley, who was for two months a slave amongst the Arabs; and of the slavery and sufferings of the author for nineteen months among the same people; with accounts of the manners, customs and habits, and a description of the country of the Arabs. By Archibald Robbins.

THE narratives and journals of Travellers, Adventurers, the Shipwrecked and Prisoners, are often told with exaggerations, and not unfrequently condemned as deceiving, rather than informing the world. The author of the proposed journal is a citizen of Connecticut, and one of the suffering crew of Capt Riley.—He has seen life in a sphere uncommon to his countrymen—he has endured miseries uncommon to human nature. By the blessings of a merciful Providence he has survived to detail his sufferings to the world. If truth will excite astonishment, and even occasion incredulity, he cannot help it: but he is resolved to tell a plain unvarnished tale of extreme suffering—of the manners, customs and habits of the extraordinary people among whom he endured it. He will submit it to the world, hoping that the liberality of the public will, in a small degree, compensate him for his suffering, by reading the tale of it.

TERMS.

I. The work shall constitute a duodecimo volume of about three hundred pages, to be handsomely bound.

II. The price to subscribers will be one dollar, to non-subscribers, $1 34.

III. Those who procure twelve subscribers, and become responsible for the payment, shall have a thirteenth gratis.

Subscription papers to be returned to William S. Marsh, Hartford, by the first day of October next.

☞ Subscriptions received at this Office.

☞ Editors of newspapers who feel interested upon this subject, and who will give these proposals a few insertions, shall be entitled to a copy of the proposed work when published.

For the prevention and cure of BILIOUS AND MALIGNANT FEVERS is recommended

HAHN's ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS

THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings in several parts of the West Indies and in the Southern and Middle States, particularly in New-York Philadelphia Baltimore Petersburg Richmond Norfolk Edenton Wilmington Charleston and Savannah. The testimony of a number of persons in each of the above places can be adduced, who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy has under Providence preserved their lives when in the most alarming circumstances.

Facts of this conclusive nature speak more in favour of a medicine than columns of pompous eulogy founded on mere assertion.

It is not indeed presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason that can result from extensive experience for believing that a dose of these Pills taken once in every two weeks during the prevalence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventative; and further, that in the earlier stages of those diseases their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases esteemed desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age.

They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile and prevent its morbid secretions—to restore and amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which are often of fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance: they are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

Lee's Infallible Ague and Fever Drops

For the cure of agues, remittent and intermittent fevers.

Hamilton's Worm-destroying Lozenges,

Which have cured an immense number of persons of both sexes of every age and in every situation of various dangerous complaints arising from worms and from obstructions or foulness in their stomach and bowels.

This medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of similar titles so commonly complained of as operating with violence; on the contrary a particular excellence of this remedy is its being suited to every age and constitution. It contains nothing but what is perfectly innocent & is so mild in its operation that it cannot injure the most delicate pregnant lady or the tenderest infant of a week old should no worms exist in the body; but will without pain or griping cleanse the stomach and bowels of whatever is foul or offensive, and thereby prevent the production of worms and many fatal disorders. The lozenges are particularly efficacious in carrying off all gross humours and eruptions, feverish and bilious complaints, and are the safest and mildest purgative that can be used on any occasion

Description of Worms, and the symptoms by which they are known.

Worms which infest the human body are chiefly of four kinds viz.—The Teres or large round worm; the Ascarides or small maw-worm; the Cucurbitina or short flat white worm; and lastly, the Tenia or tape-worm, so called from its resemblance to tape. This is often many yards long and is full of joints. It is most hurtful and most difficult to remove.

Among the symptoms attending worms are—disagreeable breath, especially in the morning; bad and corrupted gums; itching in the nose, and about the seat; convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes privation of speech; starting and grinding of the teeth in sleep; irregular appetite, sometimes loathing food and sometimes voracious; purging with slimy and fœtid stools; vomiting; large and hard belly; pains and sickness at the stomach; slow fever with small and irregular pulse; a dry cough; excessive thirst; sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance, and sometimes the face bloated and flushed.

Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms should have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges, which have been constantly attended with success in all complaints similar to those above described.

A dose of this medicine given occasionally during the warm season, will effectually prevent the vomiting and purging of children—a dreadful disorder, which annually destroys thousands of the infant part of our citizens. It is likewise the mildest and most certain remedy known, and has restored to health and strength a great number when in an advanced stage of this fatal complaint. Particular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment in such cases.

Children generally take this medicine with eagerness; having a pleasing appearance, and an agreeable taste.

Hamilton's Essence and Extract of Mustard.

A safe and effectual remedy for rheumatisms gout palsy sprains and bruises white swellings old strains and relaxations numbness and weakness of the neck pains of the side head ache swelled faces frozen limbs and every similar complaint It prevents chilblains or chopped hands and the ill effects of getting wet or damp in the feet.

The Genuine Persian Lotion,

So celebrated among the fashionable throughout Europe, is an invaluable cosmetic, perfectly innocent and safe, free from corrosive and repellent minerals, the basis of other lotions, and of unparalleled efficacy in removing blemishes of the face and skin freckles pimples inflamatory redness scurfs tetters ringworms sunburns prickly heat &c. The Persian Lotion operates mildly, without impeding the natural insensible perspiration which is essential to health, yet its effects are speedy and permanent, rendering the skin delicately soft and smooth and improving the complexion.

This excellent preparation comforts and strengthens the gums, preserves the enamel from decay, and cleanses and whitens the teeth, by absorbing all the acrimonious slime and foulness which, suffered to accumulate, never fails to injure and finally ruin them.
